

A photograph of a walkway in a park or garden. The walkway is constructed from green-painted metal pipes that form a series of overlapping arches. A fine, silver-colored metal mesh is stretched across these arches, creating a structure that resembles a spiderweb. The walkway is surrounded by dense, lush green foliage, including various trees and bushes. The lighting is soft and diffused, suggesting an overcast day. In the distance, a person can be seen walking along the path.
